Janet Gornick earned her Ph.D. in Political Economy and Government from Harvard University in 1994. She is currently Professor of Political Science and Sociology at the Graduate Center of the City University of New York (CUNY). She is also Director of the Luxembourg Income Study (LIS), a cross-national data archive and research center located in Luxembourg, and its satellite, the Luxembourg Income Study Center at the Graduate Center. Most of her research is comparative, across the industrialized countries, and concerns social welfare policies and their impact on family well-being and gender equality.

She has published articles on gender and social policy in several journals, including the American Sociological Review; the Annual Review of Sociology; the Socio-Economic Review; the Journal of European Social Policy; Social Science Quarterly; Monthly Labor Review and Feminist Economics. She recently served as Guest Editor for "Work-Family Reconciliation Policies in High-Employment Economies: Policy Designs and their Consequences," a special double issue of the Journal of Comparative Policy Analysis: Research and Practice. She has also published her work in popular venues, including The American Prospect, Dissent, and Challenge.

She is co-author of Families That Work: Policies for Reconciling Parenthood and Employment (Russell Sage Foundation 2003) and Gender Equality: Transforming Family Divisions of Labor (Verso Press, forthcoming).

Her research has been supported by several sponsors, including the Russell Sage Foundation, the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation, the Association for Public Policy Analysis and Management, the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, the U.S. Social Security Administration, the National Governors' Association, the World Bank, and the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

Professor Gornick serves on several advisory boards, including A Better Balance: The Work and Family Legal Center; the Journal of European Social Policy; and the Center for Economic and Policy Research.
