Participated in developing and carrying our research in the area of attachment and mentalization and personality disorders.

(1987-present). Current projects involve investigation of 1) the impact of patients with co-morbid borderline and narcissistic personality disorder on the treatment process and outcome over the course of one year of TFP. 2) Changes in self and object representations of BPD patients in a randomized clinical trial of TFP, DBT, and STP; 2) investigation of the relationship between attachment classification of the Adult Attachment Interview (AAI) and the developmental level of self and object representations assessed on the Object Relations Inventory (ORI).

Longitudinal research on changes in self and object representations in psychodynamic psychotherapy (collaboration with Sidney Blatt, Ph.D, John Auerbach, Patrick Luyten, Ph.D., Kevin Meehan, Ph.D., and Kenneth Levy, Ph.D.) with focus on ORI (Object Relations Inventory) data from an RCT of 90 BPD patients treated with one year of TFP (Transference Focused Psychotherapy), DBT (Dialectical Behavior Therapy) and STP (Supportive Psychotherapy). Other current activities include revision of Differentiation-Relatedness of Self and Object Representations (DR-S) scale and scoring manual, establishing norms for scoring D-R-S, revision of Rorschach Separation-Individuation Scale and scoring manual.
